EXPERT REPORT OF MICHAEL I. SHAMOS, PH.D., J.D.

I. BACKGROUND & QUALIFICATIONS

1. My name is Michael I. Shamos. I hold the title of Distinguished Career Professor in the School of Computer Science at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. I was a founder and Co-Director of the Institute for eCommerce at Carnegie Mellon from 1998-2004 and since 2004 I have been Director of the eBusiness Technology graduate program in the Carnegie Mellon University School of Computer Science. My résumé is attached as Exhibit 2.

20. An advertiser pays Google nothing to display an ad under the CPC model³ discussed immediately below. However, if a user clicks on the ad, a fee known as a cost-per-click (“CPC”) must be paid to Google by the advertiser. Google knows when a click occurs because the hyperlink associated with an advertisement points to a Google server, which is able to record the fact that a click was made. Google is then able to bill the advertiser, often by charging the advertiser’s credit card account.

B. Google’s AdWords Auction System

21. For each search query, Google must decide which ads to display in response, which order the ads will appear and also must determine a CPC for each ad. It does this through a revolutionary system known as Google AdWords. Advertisers submit ads to Google, lists of keywords to which they want the ads to be displayed in response, a CPC bid, and other information.⁴

22. Google wants to maximize its ad revenue, which it does by displaying ads that produce the highest expected revenue (CPC times the probability that the ad will be clicked on). Users want ads that are relevant and useful to them. These goals are aligned but are not identical. Google AdWords attempts to satisfy both goals by displaying in first position the ad that will produce the highest expected revenue, taking ad quality into account. This is not necessarily the ad for which the advertiser made the highest bid because if the probability that a user will click on an ad is low, then Google will probably not receive that high CPC value at all.

23. To determine which ads will appear on a search hit page, their ordering, and the CPC that the advertiser will pay, Google AdWords effectively conducts an instantaneous auction each time a search query is received.⁵ This occurs approximately 40,000 times per second and more than one trillion times per year.⁶ The AdWords auctions are analogous to traditional second-price single sealed bid auctions. The “sealed bid” is the amount an advertiser has agreed to pay as a maximum CPC. This cannot be changed during a specific auction which is why the bid is referred to as sealed. After an auction takes place, the advertiser is free to change its bid for further auctions.

24. AdWords attempts to predict the probability that an ad will be clicked on by computing a quantity known as the “quality score.”⁷ The quality score takes into account the relevance of the ad to the keywords specified by the user, the page to which the user will be directed by clicking, the formats in which the ad can be displayed, and the ad’s click-through rate (CTR). The CTR is the percentage of times that an ad is clicked on when it is presented to a user.⁸ An ad with a high CTR is generally more likely to be clicked on than one with a lower CTR.

25. The quality score is multiplied by the bid by the advertiser to produce an “ad rank,” which is a measure of Google’s expected revenue.⁹ The ad rank determines the ordering of the ads that will appear on the search hits page. The ad with the highest ad rank will appear first, the next higher will appear second, etc.¹⁰

26. AdWords will only display a single ad for each landing page.¹¹ Though multiple advertisers may be submitting ads for a single given merchant, only one ad with the merchant’s website as the landing page will be displayed. In the “shoes” example in Paragraph 16 above, there may have been two or more advertisers seeking to place an ad directing users to zappos.com, for example. Only the best zappos.com entrant will be displayed. Likewise for 6pm.com and shoes.com. AdWords also chooses which of these “best-of” ads will be displayed and in what order.

27. AdWords must then determine the CPC that will be charged to each advertiser.

Of course, the CPC cannot exceed the maximum bid by the advertiser. The computation is done bottom up.¹² The ad with the lowest ad rank to be shown will be charged one cent more than the CPC necessary to maintain its position over the ad with the next lower ad rank.

28. The calculation proceeds upwards. Each other advertiser pays a CPC equal to one cent plus the ratio of the ad rank of the next lower ad to the quality score of the current ad.¹³

29. In the example below, Google has determined to place four ads on a search page. The winning advertisers are A, B, C and D. The advertisers' bids and their quality scores are shown in columns two and three. Their computed ad ranks (max CPC times quality score) are shown in column four. The actual CPC they will pay for a click is shown in column five. This is the CPC necessary to maintain an ad rank higher than the next-lower advertiser.

ADVERTISER	BID	QUALITY	AD RANK	ACTUAL CPC
A	$2.00	10	20	$1.61
B	$4.00	4	16	$2.51
C	$5.00	2	10	$2.01
D	$4.00	1	4	$0.01

30. Note that the winner, advertiser A, actually bid the lowest CPC, $2.00. However, its quality score was so high that it had the highest ad rank. Advertiser D had the ad with the lowest rank, and must pay the minimum set by Google for an ad to appear on a page. The minimum set by Google varies but $0.01 is used in this example. Advertiser C pays $0.01 more than the ratio of D's ad rank to C's quality score, that is, $$0.01 + 4/2 = \2.01 .¹⁴ That is, if C had bid $2.01, its ad rank would have been 4.02, which is enough to beat D's 4.0.

31. In some instances, AdWords may not display Advertiser D's ad at all because its Quality Score is too low to provide a positive user experience.¹⁵

Hi Josh,

I've consulted with our most advanced policy specialists over a period of a week, since this is such an odd issue. They've investigated the other account to find out what they're doing and whether or not it complies with our policies. Unfortunately, it appears that the account is not doing anything against our policies. Our policies cover a wide range of violations, but our team believes this falls under competition.

I really appreciate your understanding and patience throughout this issue, and I can understand that this is frustrating and not exactly a typical issue. Again, I wish we had a happier resolution.

Sincerely,

Bill G.

CIVIL ACTION NO. 14-CV-34

REPLY EXPERT REPORT OF MICHAEL I. SHAMOS, PH.D., J.D.

I. BACKGROUND & QUALIFICATIONS

1. My name is Michael I. Shamos. I previously submitted reports in this case entitled “Expert Report of Michael I Shamos, Ph.D., J.D.,” dated April 1, 2016 (“Shamos I”) and “Rebuttal Expert Report of Michael I Shamos, Ph.D., J.D.,” dated June 1, 2016 (“Shamos II”). My background and the circumstances of my engagement were detailed in ¶¶1-9 of Shamos I.

2. I have now been asked by counsel for TriMax to review the “Expert Report of Dr. Abraham Wickelgren,” dated June 1, 2016 (the “Wickelgren Report”), the “Expert Report of Dr.

auctions and would be unable to earn commissions under its merchant contracts. This non-solution is once again suggested in ¶31. Furthermore, the suggestion will also not work because Wickfire's automated system detects TriMax's lowered bids and responds to them.

30. In ¶32, Dr. Wickelgren speculates on Google's "beliefs" and why Google did not reimburse TriMax, when in fact he has no information on that subject at all. Further, since the time when TriMax requested reimbursement from Google, Google has since added to its policies to prohibit "gaming the Google Network."⁹ I will refer to Google's older but still existing policies as the "Double Serving Policy," and the new set of policies as the "Gaming Policy." The Double Serving Policy formerly stated:

Violations of this policy occur when multiple websites share Common Ownership ..., plus when two or more of the following factors are present:

- Common product offering: For physical goods being sold, the sites share products in common such that a user browsing the site would perceive little difference in inventory between the sites.
- Similar pricing: When pricing is available on the sites, there's a price difference between the sites of 25% or less for substantially the same product or service. When two or more sites solicit contact information from users in order to provide a custom quote, they will be considered to have zero price difference.
- Similar customer support experience: The sites offer the same or similar type of product or service for which the customer can expect to receive the same or similar level of Support ...
- Brand: The sites have non-differentiated Brands ... for which either the brand name is the same or the logo is the same.¹⁰

31. The policy above is no longer in effect. One of the current policies (Gaming Policy) reads:

Using the Google Network to gain an unfair traffic advantage over other participants in the auction.

⁹ Abusing the ad network – Advertising policies help, available at <https://support.google.com/adwordspolicy/answer/6020954?hl=en>

¹⁰ See "The Blurry Lines of AdWords Double Serving," available at <http://www.interactually.com/blurry-lines-of-adwords-double-serving/>

*Examples: Affiliates that advertise on AdWords against the applicable affiliate program rules, promoting the same or similar content from multiple accounts on the same or similar queries.*¹¹

The Gaming Policy, in relevant part, reads:

Advertisers, apps, or sites that are found to be gaming the Google Network will be suspended and won't be allowed to advertise with us again.

32. Google's announcement of its new policies can be found in "Abuse of the ad network."¹² So Dr. Wickelgren's guess that Wickfire's bidding behavior is not "harmful to the search engine ecosystem" is not accurate now, even if it ever was.

33. In ¶33, Dr. Wickelgren seems to suggest that I find something wrong with automated bidding. I don't, and there is no portion of Shamos I that suggests that I do. He then says that "[i]f Wickfire's bidding is part of normal competitive behavior, the fact that they have automated that normal competitive behavior does not change this fact." That's a big "if" – it requires Dr. Wickelgren to categorize tortious interference with a contract as "normal competitive behavior." It's not "normal" – and it's illegal.

34. In ¶34, Dr. Wickelgren suggests that TriMax believes that there is something wrong with changing one's bids in response to the bids of others. That is not the case. However, there is something wrong with changing one's bids with the intent of interfering with TriMax's merchant contracts. That is not "normal competitive behavior."

35. In ¶35, Dr. Wickelgren offers an opinion of law (which I am informed is incorrect) that somehow a sports team that fails to compete effectively would be violating the Sherman Act. He uses this erroneous principle of law to argue that "bidding behavior such as Wickfire's occurs all the time among competing buyers," using a bogus sports analogy of exhausting budgets (and, presumably, salary caps). That is not what Wickfire is doing. A sports team that pays, for example, $5 million for a player to keep him from another team actually has to pay $5 million. It does not thereby gain the ability to sign some other player for $10. On the contrary, after purportedly summarized in the Click Report.” That’s obviously not true, as is apparent from ¶¶72-73 of Shamos I, not to mention the entire Click Report.

167. In ¶72, Mr. Jordan repeats the error, also committed by Dr. Wickelgren and Dr. Jansen, of focusing on Google’s old policies, which are no longer in effect, and assuming that any behavior that does not violate a Google policy must be legal.

168. In ¶76, Mr. Jordan repeats his erroneous opinion that experts may not rely on the testimony of fact witnesses, but must perform independent verification of the facts that form the basis of their opinions. That’s just wrong, and Mr. Jordan cites no authority at all for such a proposition, since no such authority exists. Neither Mr. Bersin nor I can determine why TriMax paused a campaign on a date long before either of us was engaged. TriMax witnesses will provide that testimony, and the jury will determine whether our reliance on it was justified.

169. In ¶76, Mr. Jordan appears not to understand the Direct/Indirect Strategy at all. He points to the fact that after TriMax paused its campaigns, it eventually resumed them. He doesn’t seem to comprehend that the purpose of Wickfire’s strategy was to exhaust TriMax’s advertising budgets, which forced it to suspend its campaigns. Neither Mr. Bersin nor I ever claimed that TriMax never resumed those campaigns. However, during the suspensions, Wickfire was able to place direct ads at very low CPCs. Then when TriMax resumed its campaigns, Wickfire’s automated system swooped in to exhaust TriMax’s budgets again. Mr. Jordan’s failure to understand the Direct/Indirect Strategy renders all his opinions concerning it unreliable.

Executed on July 1, 2016 at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Exhibit A-38

RESPONSE:

TriMax objects that the request is overly broad, unduly burdensome, and seeks information which is neither relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. TriMax further objects that “related to” is overly broad, vague and ambiguous. Subject to these objections, please see response to Request for Production 60.

REQUEST NO. 62:

All devices that utilized, at any point in time, whether directly or indirectly, the Verizon account identified in Request for Production No. 60.

RESPONSE:

TriMax will make such devices available for inspection at a mutually convenient time and location. However, due to the confidential and proprietary and/or work product and/or attorney-client privileged information contained on such devices, any such inspection will need to be confidential/AEO and the parties will need to work out a separate agreement to protect the work product and attorney-client privileged information that may be on such devices.

REQUEST NO. 63:

Documents sufficient to identify and/or describe the Google AdWords advertising campaign history, including for deleted campaigns, on each of TriMax’s Google AdWords Accounts from August 2012 to present, that direct or directed to any of the websites (or subdomains of such websites) included in Attachment A of these Requests, including for each advertising campaign all:

- a. search keywords utilized;
- b. advertisement copy;
- c. cost per click bid amounts;
- d. affiliate tracking links;
- e. destination URLs; and
- f. Google AdWords geographies in which the advertisement was placed

RESPONSE:

None.

REQUEST NO. 64:

OBJECTIONS TO DEFINITIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS

TriMax objects to the definitions and instructions to the extent they seek to require TriMax to exceed what is required by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Local Rules.

TriMax further objects that the term “TriMax” as provided by WickFire is overly broad and misleading.

ANSWERS TO PLAINTIFF’S FIRST REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION

1. Admit or deny that on or around November 9, 2012, TriMax copied text from Wickfire’s Google AdWords advertisements directing to Freshology.com, including site links, and used the copied information in at least some of TriMax’s Google AdWords advertisements directing to Freshology.com.

RESPONSE: Denied.

2. Admit or deny that between November 20, 2013 and May 19, 2014, TriMax created and ran advertisements in Google Adwords that directed to webpages on TheCoupon Co.

RESPONSE: Denied.

3. Admit or deny that between November 20, 2013 and March 1, 2014, TriMax created and ran advertisements in Google Adwords that directed to Wickfire's tracking link: <http://www.jdoqocy.com/click-5343315-10834997>.

RESPONSE: Denied.

4. Admit or deny that between November 20, 2013 and March 8, 2014, TriMax visited TheCoupon.Co (including the Xandria merchant page at <http://thecoupon.co/merchant/xandria>), copied the uniform resource locator (“URL”) of the visited page, and created advertisements in Google AdWords directing to the copied URL.

RESPONSE: Objection, multifarious. Subject to this objection, denied.

5. Admit or deny that between November 20, 2013 and March 1, 2014, TriMax utilized the rexswain.com's http_viewer tool at (<http://rexswain.com/httpview.html>) to view the hypertext transfer protocol (“HTTP”) response of Wickfire's affiliate tracking links in Commission Junction, ShareASale or other affiliate networks.

RESPONSE: Objection, multifarious. TriMax further objects that the request is vague and ambiguous as "other affiliate networks" lacks necessary specificity. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, denied.

6. Admit or deny that between November 20, 2013 and March 1, 2014 TriMax utilized the URL shortener tool available at the site: is.gd (<http://is.gd/>) to create links redirecting to Wickfire's affiliate tracking links.

RESPONSE: Denied.

7. Admit or deny that on November 25, 2013, TriMax's Google AdWords advertising campaigns directing to "cpaedcourse.com," "shortorder.com," "strapworks.com," and "myownlabels.com," were modified for at least a portion of that day in such a way that TriMax's advertisements for those campaigns would not be displayed in results for searches that Google's search engine recognized as being conducted in the state of Kentucky.

RESPONSE: Denied.

8. Admit or deny that on November 25, 2013, TriMax ran Google AdWords advertising campaigns directing to pages on the domains "anypromocodes.com", "weebly.com", and "strap-works.com", which did display in results for searches that Google's search engine recognized as being conducted in the state of Kentucky.

RESPONSE: Denied.

9. Admit or deny that on November 25, 2013, TriMax connected to the internet using internet service provided by a wireless Verizon internet service device; performed a keyword search using a geographically-limited version of Google's search engine to show results in Kentucky for at least one of the following keyword searches: "my own labels," "american healthcare academy," "short order," and "strapworks"; and clicked on Wickfire's Google AdWords advertisements directing to TheCoupon.Co from the Google results page resulting from such search.

RESPONSE: Objection, multifarious. Subject to this objection, denied.

10. Admit or deny that between January 30, 2014 and March 8, 2014, TriMax has accessed the internet on at least one occasion using a Google Chromebook computer and internet service provided by a wireless T-Mobile internet service device.

RESPONSE: Denied.

11. Admit or deny that Tiffany Jordan has previously accused TriMax of committing click fraud on affiliate advertisements that Ms. Jordan was running for her independent affiliate marketing business.

RESPONSE: Objection, misleading, vague and ambiguous. Subject to these objections, denied.

TriMax further responds that it has no knowledge of any click fraud accusations against TriMax by Tiffany Jordan. Tiffany was an employee of 1st Quest Media who was terminated due to violations of company and merchant policies. During the termination process, it was discovered that Tiffany was also running advertising campaigns for merchants she had notated in the 1st Quest Media system as unavailable. She was running these campaigns through personal accounts she had created with the networks and search engines. Tiffany expressed great regret for the unethical activity. She also donated the proceeds she had earned to Samaritan's Purse – the charitable organization TriMax Media donates ten percent of its profits to on a monthly basis.

12. Admit or deny that for at least some period of time since November 1, 2013, TriMax has placed or run Google AdWords advertisements that direct to at least one or more of the following internet domains: "shortorderla.com", "preparewise.com", "resume2hired.com", or "labscouponcodes.weebly.com" without directing through any affiliate tracking links.

RESPONSE: Denied.

A message from one of your merchants: SwimsuitsForAll.com

Dear Wickfire Internet Marketing (3383514),

Thank you for your hard work and efforts on behalf of the SwimsuitsForAll's affiliate program. At this time, the new SwimsuitsForAll program terms prohibit all forms of trademark bidding, including trademark plus bidding. If you are currently using any of SwimsuitsForAll's trademarks in any search engine positioning technique, you must stop doing so immediately.

Our analysis seems to indicate that you are not bidding on the actual terms, but may be broad matching to them as evidenced by a Google keyword search. In that case, please add swimsuits for all, swimsuitsforall.com, swimsuitsforall, swimsuitsfor all, and all variations as negative keywords.

We already sent email before, this is a final warning.
If you have any questions, please feel free to contact us at anelkenbaum@bluecherrygroup.com

Thank you,
